Globetrotters talk goats at Tatler Travel Awards

Once upon a time, Necker was just a remote island full of wild goats. Who could have predicted that one day it would win a Tatler Travel Award for best private getaway? December's starry event, sponsored by Africa Travel, was once again held at the Ritz and attended by tons of travel insiders. Necker's accolade was especially welcome as the Great House had just been rebuilt after being ravaged by fires in 2011. Sir Richard Branson's mother, Eve, 90, who was on the island when calamity struck, collected the Georg Jensen trophy and gave an impromptu speech about first swimming to Necker's shore to find nothing but white sand, tropical jungle – and goats.
